

ALL RELIGIONS ARE OKEY-DOKEY!

Hmm... That's all sensitive and politically correct and allows everyone to be lazybutt thinkers and all, but it's illogical and should be challenged. For an example right off, there are religions which say there are many gods, some say one god, and some no god. They can't all be "Okey-dokey," fer cryin' out loud, unless someone thinks being illogical is okey-dokey. On the other hand, a nonChristian religion isn't all wrong. Alright, don't get your chonies all knotted up! Here's what I mean: EVERY RELIGION HAS SOME TRUTH IN IT SOMEWHERE, whether in its moral laws or a respect for human life or a belief in one God (e.g. Judaism and Islam). Heck, even the Devil mixes Truth in with his lies.

So, not all religions are the same AND there is some truth in each. So what? So this:

We can show people that although there are many different faiths, and that there is some truth in each, Christianity is most consistent with the facts, the closest to the "Big T" Truth. Get to know the other faiths, then show others, armed with knowledge and conviction, that our faith correctly and consistently explains both what we see around us and what we feel inside ourselves.

But above all, prove to them the one thing that separates us from ALL other faiths:

THAT JESUS OF NAZARETH IS MESSIAH, GOD IN THE FLESH,
AND HE ROSE FROM THE DEAD.

Can you? (pause, then ask): Ready to try?